

59/088727

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Data is transmitted from a first server computer to a client computer by transmitting the data from the first server computer to a second server computer in a first encoding format, transforming the data from the first encoding format to a second encoding format at the second server computer and transmitting the transformed data in the second encoding format to the client computer from the second server computer.